Film Overview

As Florida's violent legislation dominates headlines, LGBTQ2S+ communities are also on the frontlines of accelerating climate change. Can't Stop Change: Queer Climate Stories from the Florida Frontlines weaves interviews with 14 LGBTQ2S+ artists, organizers, and educators across Florida (and the new Florida diaspora) into an intersectional queer climate justice narrative.

Can't Stop Change shares stories of queer and trans resistance, resilience, and brilliance in the face of rising seas, stronger storms, and escalating state violence. The story maps a web of entanglements between the legislative violence to our bodies and lands, and uplifts the dreams, strategies, and joy of queer, trans, and two-spirit organizers. Amidst so much unknown, Can't Stop Change shares an emergent hope: moments of disaster create opportunities for immense transformation, where what once seemed impossible becomes possible. As we look towards future hurricane seasons and legislative cycles, how can we work with the changes to come to shape the futures we want?

Screening Suggestions

Can't Stop Change is best watched in community with others, as the film is intended to spark critical conversations about LGBTQ2S+ experiences and resistance. The production team created these guidelines for groups organizing screenings in their communities.

Before the Event

1. Prioritize Accessibility: Prioritize accessibility in all aspects of the event. Make sure to consider:

- Accessibility for mobility devices (e.g. wheelchairs, canes, walkers)
- Seating options for all body types (e.g. disabled bodies, fat bodies)
- Language accessibility (e.g. interpretation, multilingual flyers)
- Accessibility for Deaf/Hard of Hearing attendees (e.g. ASL interpretation, subtitles)
- Accessibility of restrooms (including gender neutral restrooms)
- COVID safety protocols (e.g. masks, hand sanitizer, air circulation)
- Transportation access (e.g. public transportation access, rideshare/carpool options)

For more guidance on planning accessible events, consult the following resources:

- How to Make Your Social Justice Events Accessible Checklist (Rooted in Rights)
- Accessibility Checklist (Punch Up Collective)
- Enable Dignity: Accessible Systems, Spaces, and Events (Stim Punks)
- The Trans Dimension Guide to Inclusive Events (Geeks for Social Change)
- How to Build Language Justice (Antena Aire)

2. Select a date and time: Select a date and time that work best for the audience(s) you're hoping will attend your event. If you'd like to combine the screening with a Q&A, community conversation, or other activity, plan at least 2.5 hours for the event.

3. Secure a Space: Finding a venue is often the most challenging part of hosting a film screening. While theaters will often provide the most comfortable viewing experience, non-traditional venue options may be more cost-effective. Some venue ideas are: libraries, community centers, colleges and universities, non-profit organizations, mutual aid centers, LGBTQ+ affirming churches, and art studios or galleries. Before booking the venue, ask the following questions:

- What is the actual total cost? On top of the rental fee, venues may require a refundable deposit and/or fees for cleaning, equipment use, and administration.
- What are the venue's food and drink policies? Some venues may prohibit food or require use of specific catering companies.
- Does the venue have A/V equipment? Will staff be available for A/V support?
- How accessible is the venue? (See Suggestion #1 for more accessibility considerations).
- Who is responsible for setting up, tearing down, and cleaning up the space?
- What is the capacity of the space?

Screening Suggestions

4. Sign Up to Host: Once you've determined basic event details, visit linktr.ee/cantstopchange and sign up to host the screening.

5. Decide on RSVP/Ticketing Process: Decide what process will work best for attendees to RSVP. Do attendees need to RSVP, or can they simply show up at the event?

6. Promote the Event: To get the word out, consider using different promotion methods. These may include social media posts, printed flyers in public spaces, directly inviting local organizations, word-of-mouth, listservs, text message threads, and more. When promoting, make sure to include date, time, location, RSVP link, contact info, and accessibility information.

7. Test Out A/V Equipment: Before the event begins, run a full A/V test. If the venue does not manage the A/V, designate an event organizer to run the A/V and troubleshoot issues that may come up.

During the Event

1. Welcome & Introduction: When welcoming attendees, include important accessibility and comfort information, such as the location of restrooms. Share an overview of the event. This resource guide includes a pre-screening introduction that can be used to introduce the film.

2. Intermission (optional): Can't Stop Change can be shown all the way through, or a brief intermission can be added between Chapter 4 (Mouth of a Shark) and Chapter 5 (What Lies Beneath).

3. Post-Film Activities: Consider hosting a community engagement activity before or after the screening. Some options include:

- Facilitating a community discussion
- Hosting a Q&A with the production team
- Writing legislative erasure poetry (See the Unlawful Poetics page for information)
- Supporting local mutual aid projects, such as making hygiene kits for the homeless, phonebanking, disaster preparedness planning, or making go bags.

After the Event

1. Follow Up: After the screening, organizers are encouraged to facilitate a post-film discussion between attendees. Suggested discussion questions are offered in this resource guide.

2. Share Your Experience: If you'd like to share stories or photos from your screening with the production team, you can email them to queererecoproject@gmail.com. Testimonials about the impact of the film are especially appreciated, as they can be used to help promote it to new audiences.

Pre-Screening Intro

This optional introduction from the Co-Directors team can be used to introduce the film.

Thank you for coming out to watch Can't Stop Change: Queer Climate Stories from the Florida Frontlines. This documentary emerged out of the conversations and relationships between frontline Floridians and the production team as they embarked on a road trip from Miami to Tallahassee. Originally envisioned in April 2023 as a mini-documentary, the project has since blossomed into a feature-length film featuring interviews with 14 queer, trans, and two-spirit collaborators on their fears, hopes, joys, and visions for a liberated world.

In recent years, Florida's legislative attacks on LGBTQ2S+, BIPOC, and other marginalized communities have come to dominate national news. Additionally, Florida has become a symbol of the urgency of the climate crisis, most notably through stronger hurricanes and sea level rise. Can't Stop Change explores the entanglements between these issues, revealing that violence against bodies and lands is interwoven. Can't Stop Change is a deeply place-based film, with storytelling of Florida history, culture, and ecology. Yet its messages are relevant for all of us as we navigate the multiple threats of climate crisis, late stage capitalism, white supremacy, and the resurgence of fascism.

Please note that this documentary does explore themes that may be distressing to viewers. The film includes footage of hurricane destruction along with frank discussions of disaster militarism, police brutality, colonization, and anti-trans violence. Yet the film also celebrates resistance and joy, weaving in scenes of queer and trans bodies connecting with each other and the more-than-human world. The production team hopes viewers won't leave feeling hopeless, but rather inspired by the brilliance of the collaborators who shine so brightly in this film.

These times we are living in are unstable, tumultuous, and heartbreaking. So much is changing and so much is being unveiled. This film is an offering to everyone who is actively shaping these changes through their resistance, labor, joy, and dreams. It is our hope that communities inside and outside of Florida can use this film as a tool to support organization, education, and imagination for a liberated world. We know we can't count on the state to support us; instead, we must care for each other and hold each other through the upheavals.

Thank you. Please enjoy Can't Stop Change: Queer Climate Stories from the Florida Frontlines.

Discussion Questions

The following questions are offered as suggestions for post-screening discussions. Organizers are encouraged to select the questions most relevant to their context. Questions are grouped by themes.

Personal Connections

1. What is your personal relationship to Florida? How are these changes (climate change, legislative change) impacting that relationship?
2. How do these stories from Florida connect to experiences in the place(s) you call home?
3. What stories from the film resonated most with you, and why?
4. Were there any moments in the film that you found especially challenging? Why?
5. How did watching the film impact your understanding of your own positions and privileges related to climate and legislative changes?

Diving Deep

6. Who or what do you think is behind the recent surge in legislative and other forms of violence? How are these forms of violence connected to systems of oppression, such as white supremacy, patriarchy, colonialism, and capitalism?
7. What's being undone by climate and legislative changes? What possibilities are opening up?

Dreams and Strategies

8. What strategies for shaping change shown in the film resonated most with you? What other strategies for shaping change are important to you?
9. What are you dreaming up for the future (of Florida, of your area)? What actions can you take (or are you already taking) to make that dream a reality?
10. What skills, resources, and connections do you have to contribute to the fights against climate crisis, repression, and legislative violence?

Organizer Resources

To support ongoing organizing efforts in Florida, the production team has compiled an online spreadsheet of resources related to disasters, mutual aid, climate justice, and policy. It also includes resources created by the film’s collaborators. This spreadsheet is a living document and will be updated periodically. The full spreadsheet can be accessed at bit.ly/csc-org-guide.

Legislative Resources

Legislative Overview

Throughout the film, collaborators reference repressive legislation introduced and/or passed in Florida between 2021 and 2023. Since 2023, the legislative landscape across the U.S. has gotten even more dire for LGBTQ2S+ and other marginalized communities. Transgender people, especially trans, non-binary, and gender non-conforming youth, have been especially targeted.

Much of the legislation introduced to date can be grouped into the following categories:

- Restrictions on gender affirming care (e.g. criminalizing gender affirming care for youth; removing gender affirming care from insurance coverage)
- Censorship of queer and trans communities (e.g. restrictions on classroom instruction; attacking LGBTQ+ teachers and students; banning drag performances)
- Restrictions on participation in public life (e.g. prohibiting trans people from having the correct gender marker on state identification; bathroom bans)

Additionally, Florida has passed legislation explicitly targeting other marginalized communities, particularly Black communities, communities of color, and immigrant communities. This results in even greater harm towards those who hold intersectional identities.

Anti-trans and anti-queer legislation is not unique to Florida. Politicians across the country are enacting a campaign of violence against queer and trans communities, often modeling legislation in their states after Florida. These attacks are frequently supported by religious organizations (especially white Christian nationalist groups) and corporate entities, including fossil fuel corporations. What's happening in Florida matters for LGBTQ2S+ people and other marginalized groups everywhere.

Legislative Resources

The legislative landscape for LGBTQ2S+ people is changing rapidly. The specifics of legislation discussed in the film may have changed since filming. Additionally, each state is experiencing its own legislative battles. For deeper analysis of these issues, the production team recommends:

- Erin in the Morning: Trans journalist Erin Reed writes about trans issues and often analyses anti-trans legislation.
- Trans Formations Project: This volunteer-run organization tracks anti-trans legislation across the country as it emerges.
- The Anti-Trans Hate Machine: This podcast series from TransLash Media is a deep dive into the motivations and key players behind the surge in anti-trans legislation.
- Florida Coalition for Trans Liberation: This organization analyses anti-trans policies in Florida.

Educator Resources

Can't Stop Change: Queer Climate Stories from the Florida Frontlines can be shown in its entirety or in chapters. Chapter summaries and themes are provided in this guide. Educators are encouraged to use the recommended media to build out lessons and curricula accompanying the film. The production team thanks Florida Atlantic University PhD candidate Barbara Perez for her work on this guide.

Chapter Summaries and Themes

Chapter 1 (Introduction) The Real Florida

Summary: In this chapter, viewers are invited to visit the Real Florida, a Florida that is home to and shaped by LGBTQ2S+, BIPOC, immigrant, and working class communities. Viewers are introduced to the “Three Floridas” and the different ecologies and justice struggles of the state.

Main Themes: Diversity, Intersectionality, Place, Home, Positionality, Standpoint

Chapter 3: Unnatural Disasters

Summary: Interviewees discuss their experiences during and in the aftermath of hurricanes. They discuss how the failures of the state to provide aid led to a reliance on neighbors and mutual aid networks. They discuss the “unnaturalness” of disasters: that the disastrous aspects of hurricanes are not merely caused by the wind and rain, but by political, economic, and social factors.

Chapter 5: What Lies Beneath

Summary: Interviewees discuss the dynamics of power and oppression in Florida. Viewers learn about the draining of lands in South Florida, and the intricate interactions of patriarchy, capitalism, and coloniality that drove this short-sighted effort. The chapter ends by exploring the impact of these forces in anti-trans bills today, including ongoing funding from fossil fuels.

Gratitude

The Can't Stop Change production team is deeply grateful to all of the people and places who made this film possible. We are honored that our film collaborators entrusted us with their powerful and important stories. We hope this film will nourish the continued growth of mycelial networks that can support us as we move through these tumultuous times. Thank you, each and every one of you, for your commitment to collective flourishing and liberation.

May this work be in service of healing & transformation.
